

Monitor to 'Frack' 3rd Of 5 'Pays' This Week

SWABBING OUT IS HAMPERED BY GAS
AND OIL IN HOLE

Monitor Petroleum Corporation plans to fracture the third of five "pay" zones in its deep test well in Elliott County late this week.

Workers on Wednesday were still swabbing out after Halliburton had fractured the second "pay" zone Aug. 14. The job had been delayed when a motor on the cable-tool rig used for swabbing burned out soon after swabbing started.

Subsequently another rig was brought in from west Kentucky, and swabbing got underway last weekend. But the operation was slow.

The "frack" job was over 7,800 feet deep, and the swabbers had to bring out over 1,000 barrels of water and several thousand pounds of sand used in the fracturing job.

"And we're running into a lot of gas and oil—and this is hampering the work," said Bink Strickland, division engineer for Monitor, Wednesday.

The well was drilled to a depth of about 9,600 feet, and the first "pay" zone was "fracked" five weeks ago at a depth of about 7,900 feet. The second "pay" was about 30 feet above the first "pay," Strickland said.

The third "pay" to be fracked this weekend is about 50 feet above the second, Strickland said Wednesday.

The other "pays" are further up the hole, as revealed by a comprehensive log made of the well by a Charleston logging service.

The well is at Stephens at the mouth of Ison Creek on Little Fork in eastern Elliott County. It is on the farm of Cecil Ison, merchant and postmaster at Stephens.

Monitor, which is drilling the well on a farm-out agreement with Ashland Oil, Pennzoil and Sun Oil, started the deep test in April. Monitor president J. D. Silberman said at the time that his company planned to drill two deep tests in Eastern Kentucky, one in Elliott and the other in Morgan.

Purpose of the tests is to find the Appalachian Trough of the Precambrian formation that extends southward from the Ohio-Pennsylvania line into Eastern Kentucky. Big gas producers have been drilled in the Appalachian Trough in eastern Ohio.

The Elliott well evidently hit the Trough, for it is on a sharp downthrust, as shown by the shallower depths of basement wells in nearby Carter, Boyd, and Lewis Counties. The eastern Elliott well is some 3,300 feet deeper than another basement well drilled in western Elliott, about 14 miles away. It is also considerably deeper than the wells in Carter, Boyd, and Lewis Counties.

Wide interest has attached to the test, and nearly all land in a wide area has been leased. But trading on leases is still being reported.

Onlookers watch as brick dwelling house is moved to make room for proposed new West Liberty hospital. The brick structure was moved Friday from the hospital site on Wells Hill to an adjacent 80x120 ft. lot next to the Lucy M. Davis property. Owners of the building and the lot it was moved to are Grover Frederick, Wendell Nickell, and Woodrow Stamper. Harold Schritter Moving Co. of South Point, Ohio moved the structure. A spokesman for the Morgan County Hospital Board said Tuesday that the $1,500,000 hospital project is progressing as planned. Though local planners have as yet received no confirmation, state and federal officials indicated earlier in the year that the project may be advertised for construction bids sometime in September.

ARC Grant Of $464,000 Is Approved For W.L. Hospital

Kentucky Congressman Carl D. Perkins and U. S. Senators John Sherman Cooper and Marlow Cook advised the Morgan County Hospital Planning Committee Tuesday that the Appalachian Regional Commission has officially approved a grant of $464,000 to help finance construction of the West Liberty Hospital.

Approval of the ARC grant means that all federal funds for construction of the proposed $1.5 million hospital have been approved and allocated.

The ARC grant had been tentatively approved earlier, but no steps toward construction could be taken until the grant was officially approved.

Presumably, the hospital project will now be advertised for construction bids in accordance with a timetable established last spring by state and federal officials.

State and federal planners earlier had predicted that the hospital project might be advertised for bids in September of this year. And the ARC's action this week indicates that the project is progressing as planned.

Meanwhile, Harold Schritter Moving Co. of South Point, Ohio earlier this week completed the moving of a brick dwelling house from the hospital site on Wells Hill to an adjacent lot. The moving job, financed by the owners of the house, clears the hospital site for construction.

Besides the ARC grant, other construction funds approved for the hospital include a federal Hill-Burton grant totaling $625,954, and a $425,000 bond issue approved by Morgan voters in 1968 to meet local costs.

In addition to approving the bond issue, Morgan citizens earlier this year donated around $50,000 to purchase a $26,000 site and provide other local expenses.

The hospital, which will serve Morgan and five other counties, will have 20 beds for care of acutely ill patients and 30 beds for extended care of convalescing patients. It will also contain a maternity section, an emergency room, laboratory, a pharmacy, nurses quarters, doctors' consultation rooms, etc., all housed in a modern two-story building.

Today, the Association's 76 churches have a membership of 6,500.

In Prestonsburg, Mr. Music said women of the various clubs were particularly effective in carrying out a cleanup campaign.

Woodrow White, president of the club, said also that other groups would be invited to join in the campaign, including Boy Scouts and other youth groups.

Debris consisting mainly of discarded bottles and cans, litter, drainage ditches in many parts of town, also entrances to town need cleaning up and beautifying, it was agreed.

The Kiwanis Club now meets regularly in the remodeled dining room at Don's at 6:30 each Wednesday evening.

County Fair Scheduled Next Week At RECC Fairgrounds

Farber Carnival
Will Play 5-Day
Stand At Fair

The 1970 Morgan County Fair will be held next week at the RECC Fairgrounds at Malone, a week earlier than usual. The fair will officially open Tuesday, Sept. 1, and run through Saturday, Sept. 5, according to John Oldfield, Jr., 1970 Fair Board president.

The earlier date, Oldfield said, was necessary in order to schedule Farber's Carnival, which this year promises a greater variety of amusements and rides on the midway.

The carnival will begin a five day stand at the fairgrounds Tuesday.

The Morgan County Fair is basically an educational and fun event related to the county's principal industry — agriculture, Oldfield said, and all farm families are encouraged to participate by exhibiting crops, livestock, and other articles they have grown or made. All exhibits, he said, will be guarded.

All breeds and official classes of swine, beef cattle, dairy cattle, and poultry may be exhibited in open class, 4-H, and FFA divisions. Youth divisions are limited to Morgan County youth only.

All livestock exhibited will be subject to State Health Department regulations regarding health certificates. Those planning to exhibit livestock in the fair should contact Dr. William G. Holbrook, West Liberty, to get health papers.

Other exhibits will include field crops, garden products, fruits, canned goods, eggs, clothing, knitted garments, crocheted work, flowers, breads, pies, cakes, cookies, candies, arts and crafts, and anything made or produced by 4-H and FFA boys and girls.

Farm and home exhibits are to be entered between 4 and 6 p.m. Wednesday and will remain on display through the remainder of the week. Exhibits may be checked out between 4 and 6 p.m. Saturday.

On Tuesday, evening, Sept. 1, the fair will get underway with a jamboree featuring entertainment by string bands, square dancing, etc. Richard Jett, Glenn Woodward, and Larry Smith are in charge of this event. Farber Carnival also will open Tuesday evening.

Wednesday's activities will include a baby show. This always-popular event will feature four classes—

Class 1 — Girls from birth to crawling age.

Class 2 — Boys from birth to crawling age.

Class 3 — Girls from walkers up to age 3.

Class 4 — Boys from walkers up to age 3.

Cash prizes will be awarded to first place winners. Second and third-place winners in each class will receive ribbons. Mrs. Phyllis Hamilton is in charge of this event.

A dog show—a very popular event last year—is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. For more information on this event, call Dr. William Holbrook, local veterinarian, who is in charge.

SOUTHERN CORN LEAF BLIGHT PREVALENT IN MORGAN COUNTY

Blight-Infested
Corn Won't Harm
Livestock, Said

Morgan County Agriculture Extension Agent Douglas Howard reported this week that the southern corn leaf blight which is spreading rapidly throughout the southern U. S. has become wide-spread in Morgan County.

Said Howard, "In varying degrees, the blight is in all corn that I've seen in the country and several crops are really heavily infested."

Since most corn in Morgan was nearing maturity at the time the blight struck, losses of corn yield in this county probably won't be as high as some experts have predicted, Howard said.

He said the blight first appeared in this county about two weeks ago.

He said, however, that while actual losses of yield in some instances may approach 50 percent, most Morgan crops won't be as badly damaged as some experts have predicted. He said this is due to the fact that most corn in Morgan was nearing maturity when the blight struck, about two weeks ago.

The more mature the corn is when the blight strikes, the less damage it causes, he said. He pointed out that University of Kentucky Extension experts caution farmers against over-reacting to the problem.

The experts recommend letting the blighted corn mature as long as possible. If the blight strikes the corn in the hard-rough stage, the plant will nevertheless proceed to make grain. Some ear rot will develop, but only about 10 percent of the yield will be affected.

Farmers are encouraged to use severely blighted corn for silage, even if the corn hasn't tasseled before the blight hits, grass silage can be made from the corn. Such corn should be cut and wilted, and 200 to 250 pounds of crushed grain per ton should be added to the grass silage to insure proper nutrient content. However, nitrate tests should be made on this type of material. County agents can supply farmers with the location of facilities where nitrate tests are run.

One of the most important things for farmers to remember is that blight infested corn is not toxic, and no harmful side effects are expected among livestock to which corn has been fed, Howard said.

Chemical spraying to arrest the blight is not worth the bother and expense, most experts say, because spraying merely arrests the blight and does not cure the plants.

Extension Service News

We like to think we're well fed in America. And we are, compared to many countries. Although good food is abundantly available, many people need improved diets. This is confined by much research on the nutritional states of Americans. Countless surveys from all parts of the country reveal remarkable similar information. Predominant are these facts: Overweight persists everywhere. Their fat diets and quackery move in. No more than 15-20% of the population eats an adequate breakfast. Meals are on a "catch as catch can" basis. The older the child, the poorer the diet. From childhood to teenage, the percentage of young people with poor diets increase sharply. The teenage girl is the poorest fed member of the family. Family income level has little influence on breakfast quality. Most respondents lacked enough interest or knowhow to select food wisely.

There are over twenty-one million teenage boys and girls. More than 11% of the population. A group that is growing at the rate of one million per year—the fastest growing segment of our population. This is the most important group in the U. S. today.

Teenagers are the parents and leaders of tomorrow—the food buyer, menu planners and opinion makers of today and next year.

These are the reasons behind youthpower a new and dramatic "youth to youth" program on food nutrition.

The youthpower conference has five objectives that it will be attempting to get across to the young people they are:

To dramatize statewide concern about teenage eating habits and the cultural, social, and economic value of food.

To develop cooperation between youth groups.

To increase understanding of the farm-to-table story.

To improve teenage nutrition.

To acquaint teenagers with a better understanding of food careers.

Attend our Licking River Area youthpower conference on Food on September 12th at Morehead State University and expand your knowledge on your nutrition and correct eating habits. All teenagers are invited.

AMERICA'S NEW ROMANTICISM INCITES STRANGE REACTIONS

TIME Magazine publisher Henry Luce in a chamber of commerce speech stresses the need for calmness lest America's new romanticism incite over-reaction to the apparent contradictions. Luce notes: "This new American Romanticism is characterized by an exaltation of passion and emotion, rather than reason, and a targeting of these values on things that are distant in time or space—the far away, the long ago and the yet to come, if not actually the never never. Romanticism mixes love and violence, vision and illusion, idealism and irrelevancy, passion and escape. It is a very hard mixture to contend with.

"The romantic syndrome can do much damage. It will deny to some the ability to achieve a productive and satisfying life. It will enable radical agitators to exploit many easily-influenced souls in the service of their dangerous causes. It will alter the role of institutions like the universities, perhaps destroying their freedom and rendering them a stultifying presence, or worse. It might even threaten our democratic form of government itself."

SEVERANCE TAX ON COAL WOULD HELP THE MOUNTAINS

The Appalachian Regional Commission last week authorized a study that could lead to recommending a federal severance tax on coal.

A severance tax on extraction of coal from our hill country is long overdue. But whether the state or federal government should order the tax is a question.

The Appalachian Commission thinks a nationwide severance tax enacted by Congress would give no mining operation a price advantage over any other. And a part of the tax would be returned to the state where the coal is mined. Such a tax is needed to give Appalachian states a greater share of the wealth from coal mining. Once the coal is mined, this wealth will be gone, and Appalachia's principal mineral resource will be gone.

Mine operators too long have taken out this wealth without contributing a fair share of the taxes.

The Appalachian Commission also authorized studies to find ways to reduce harmful environmental effects of coal mining. This too is long overdue.

Let us be kind to everyone. For nearly everybody is fighting a difficult battle.

BUSINESS HERE AND HEREABOUTS

MORE GET FOOD STAMPS — Sixty-four percent more Kentuckians are receiving Food Stamps the past June than for the same period a year earlier, the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture reports. Kentuckians participating in the Food Stamp program in June totaled 208,770 as compared to 127,204 a year earlier.

LT. GOV. WENDELL FORD has asked Gov. Louie B. Nunn to withdraw an amendment increasing weight limits on certain roads in Eastern Kentucky. The amendment would raise the maximum limits of the roads involved to 73,280 pounds. Ford said he believed the amendment affected "roads which have already been rendered unusable for most normal automobile traffic" and on which the Highway Department announced it will spend up to $116,000 for repairs. —A Highway Department ment spokesman said the amendment can be changed only if the agency files with the Legislative Research Committee another amendment repealing it.

LIQUOR SALES — Sales of Glenmore Distilleries Co. doubled last year over the previous year, reaching a record total of $144.3 million as compared to $74 million in 1969. Profits were up 21 percent.

POLLUTED AIR KILLS — At long last, one authoritative agency agrees that constant pollution of the air we breathe is a major cause of the growing increase in deaths from lung cancer, and such respiratory ailments as bronchitis and emphysema, also certain heart disease deaths. But for years Americans were propagandized through TV commercials that cigarettes were to blame—and they never mentioned polluted air from autos and trucks and factory smokestacks. But finally the scientists are checking, and what they find confirms a report made four years ago that hydro carbons from internal combustion engines was the second most certain cause of lung cancer and respiratory ailments. But the first report was hushed up quickly. Then the TV commercials commenced their "educational campaign" against cigarettes, sponsored by 10 reputable organizations using $3,100,000 in gifts. But they never have told who gave the money to finance the TV commercials. Last week the Carnegie School of Industrial Administration reported in Science Weekly, a publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that if air pollution were cut by 50%, deaths from lung cancer — and in fact all lung diseases — would be cut by 25%. And deaths and disease from heart and blood vessel disorders could be cut by 10 to 15 percent. These calculations were based on "existing medical knowledge," said the Carnegie group. Moreover, the report shows that the sudden increase of pollution in the air caused by invasions in the atmosphere do not cause respiratory deaths suddenly — but the constant pollution of the air is what kills, they found. At long last, what this newspaper has been saying for 3½ years is being confirmed by studies and scientific reports—that it is pollution of our air by autos, trucks, factory smokestacks, etc. that is causing the big increase in lung and heart diseases.

NATURAL GAS SHORTAGE — Gas is in such short supply that most utilities up East are refusing to take on new industrial users, and some companies are restricting the number of new home users. The coal shortage will further affect use of gas this winter, and the government through the Federal Power Commission has proposed that 4,600 small gas producing companies be freed from price controls, hoping that this will spur new drilling.

MOREHEAD GETS MORE FUNDS — Morehead State University has received supplemental federal grants totaling $210,894 for two projects it is sponsoring. The Office of Economic Opportunity granted Morehead U. an additional $200,894 for Project Newgate, an experimental program aimed at rehabilitating inmates of the nearby Federal Youth Center at Ashland. And the U. S. Office of Education granted Morehead U. an additional $10,000 to purchase material and equipment for Morehead U's Appalachian Adult Basic Education Demonstration project.

STATE'S 1974 CELEBRATION — Kentucky will observe its 200th birthday in 1974. And a year-long sesqui-centennial celebration will be geared to attracting tourists, according to Ken Harper, Public Information Commissioner. And a prime project will be reconstruction and reactivation of Fort Boonesboro on the south side of the Kentucky River a few miles below the mouth of Red River, Harper said.

ANOTHER HOUSEHOLD POISON — The Food and Drug Administration on Aug. 18 issued an order banning the use of carbon tetrachloride in household products, the order to become effective in 90 days. Carbon tetrachloride is widely used in household cleaning fluids. The FDA previously determined that inhalation of the chemical poses a variety of health hazards, including liver damage. The agency's original order to ban the chemical was issued in May 1968 but was postponed because of industry objections.

PLAN FOR RAILROADS — With two railroads already in receivership and others in financial distress, proposals to aid them are heard in governmental circles. One that is gaining favor is for the government to issue bonds and buy up all railroad rights-of-way and re-lease it to the railroads. Money received for its right-of-way could be used by railroads to shore up a losing business. And this seems fair, since trucking firms don't own highways and airlines don't own airports. The government has provided them.

OBSERVATIONS AND PREDICTIONS

NEW POLLUTION-FREE ENGINE — W. L. Sinto, a Sarasota Fla. research scientist, said last week he had signed a multi-million dollar contract for mass production of his pollution-free engine in the Japanese auto the Datsun. But Minto said the contract did not include other nations, thus he is free to negotiate for sale of rights for the new engine to American auto producers. The contract was signed in Tokyo, and Datsun has announced the pollution-free engine will be in its 1973 autos. Perfected after years of work in the Kinetics Corp plant in Florida, the engine is powered by Freon, a liquid chemical. The car will get 25 to 30 miles per gallon. Because there are so few parts, the engine is virtually maintenance-free and would last for many years, Datsun said. Minto worked on development of the atom bomb and in recent years has been experimenting with auto engines. The conventional type internal combustion auto engine is responsible for 60% of air contamination in America, scientists say.

KENTUCKIAN HEADS PENN RR — Trustees of the Penn Central Railway, which recently went bankrupt, last week picked a Kentucky native to serve as president and chief executive officer during the troubled railroad's reorganization. He is William H. Moore, native of Hazard, Ky., who has made an outstanding record as executive vice president of the Southern Railway. His choice was hailed by the industry and by Wall Street. Moore is a 6-foot-3 executive who knows railroading from the tracks up.

T.B. DEATHS — Tuberculosis is still a problem in Kentucky. Last year 197 Kentuckians died of tuberculosis out of 1137 cases.

4-LANE CONNECTOR — Morehead is getting a four-lane connector road from the city to Interstate-64, which runs 2.6 miles to the north of the city. The connector parallels KY-32, hugging the east hill of the valley. A cut 104 feet deep was made at the Divide Hill. Blacktopping the 2.6 mile sector was commenced last week.

KENTUCKY INCOME UP — Personal income of Kentuckians rose 97.7% during the 1960 decade, highest of any surrounding state. According to the U. S. Department of Commerce, the annual income of Kentuckians per person was $2,847, which was nearly double what it was in 1960. Ohio's per-capita income for 1969 was $3,738, an increase of 82.4% in the decade. West Virginia's per-capita income was $2,603, up 61.2% in the decade. But only Ohio's per-capita income equaled the national average of $3,700. Total personal income in Kentucky last year was 9.2 billion. Nationally, the growth rate was 94.5% in the decade.

CLEAN-AIR LEGISLATION that would impose by 1975 auto emission standards originally planned for 1980 cleared the Senate's antipollution subcommittee. Supporters are confident of passage but see major obstacles in the House, which has passed a less stringent measure. Strong Detroit opposition is anticipated for the bill, which would require new cars to emit 90% less pollutants by 1975 than currently permitted.

COLUMBIA GAS SYSTEM signed a long-term contract with units of Jersey Standard to buy most of the liquefied natural gas to be produced at a proposed plant in Venezuela. Sources said the purchase could involve more than $1.7 billion of the fuel over a 20-year period. The move reflects a growing shortage of domestic gas.

CONTAMINATION FROM MINES — The Lexington Herald-Leader found in its Straw Poll last week that Kentuckians voted 90% in favor of the Kentucky Water Control Commission requiring coal companies to neutralize natural mine acids which could run off into streams. Only 4% were against the proposal.

BOND ISSUE ON BALLOT — In addition to electing seven Congressmen this fall, Kentucky voters will be called upon to pass judgement on a proposed State bond issue of $48.3 million for capital construction projects. The money would be used to construct additional centers for the department of corrections and mental health, the school for the blind, school for the deaf, and child welfare. Included is a proposal to build a third state prison, a 475-bed facility which would separate first offenders from hardened criminals. The bond issue question will be on the ballots this November.

TWO BIG SCHOOL PROJECTS — The Appalachian Regional Commission in recent weeks has made federal grants for construction of two major vocational schools in the mountains — one at Morehead and the other at London. Morehead University was granted money to build a $3 million Appalachian Technical Institute, and the Laurel County Board of Education was granted federal funds to build a vocational center adjacent to the Laurel County High School at London. The latter, an extension of the area vocational school at Harlan, will teach auto mechanics, body repair, appliance repair, carpentry, drafting, and electricity. Why is this county left out?

BIG CORPORATIONS IN TROUBLE — In recent months two railroads have gone bankrupt. Now, another big American corporation, one that is third biggest supplier of military and naval equipment to the nation, is in financial trouble and has approached former Ford Motor president S. E. Knudsen and asked him to take the presidency to pull it through the crisis. So watch for more bad news on the economic front if Knudsen turns down the offer.

CATTLE PRICES — Cattle prices in Kentucky markets dropped 50¢ to 75¢ a hundred-weight the past few days, reflecting apprehension of feed-

FACTS CENTER FOR APPALACHIA

Interested groups met recently at Wise, Va., and formed a center for the collection and dissemination of facts on Appalachia. Miss Beth Bingham, a graduate student at Clinch Valley College, was chosen as chairman of the group, and a board of ten members was named to supervise the projects. All data needed about Appalachia will be collected by the commission and be kept on hand for use by researchers, etc.

COAL TO JAPAN — There's big money to be made in coal, and new strip-mining operations are springing up all over the mountains. Japanese steel mills have out-bid domestic coal consumers for two years, and most of Appalachia's best coaling coal is now being sold to Japan. This leaves a shortage for steel mills and electric plants in America, and they are scrambling to get coal wherever they can. Some electric companies are burning the inferior grades of coal to keep their generating plants operating, and price of coal has tripled in three years in East Kentucky.

POLLUTION - FREE ENGINE — Wallace Minto of Kinetics Corporation who sold foreign rights to his new pollution-free auto engine to the Japanese to power their Datsun mini-car, says American auto manufacturers are wedded to the internal combustion engine and would not consider his new engine for American cars. Internal combustion engines in cars and trucks emit over 60% of air pollutants in America, scientists say. Minto said American manufacturers "are going to maintain the status quo at all costs. They maintain nothing will work but the internal combustion engine, and they seem to think they can make it efficient in the next five years, thus cutting down pollution." Minto signed a multi-million dollar contract last week in Tokyo and the engine will be used to power the Datsun cars in 1972 and 73. Minto's new engine works the same essentially as early steam cars, but it uses Freon instead of water to produce steam. Kerosene is the fuel used to heat the boiler. The engine has only two moving parts and weighs only 52 pounds. He says the Freon-steam engine will have the life of 50 internal combustion engines and runs much smoother than the internal engine.

HUNTING COAL LAND — One of the state's largest strip-mine operators (from the Bluegrass country) was in Morgan county Tuesday looking for coal suitable for strip mining. He has strip-mine operators in Johnson and Martin and needs more to supply contracts. So watch for strip-mining to start soon in Morgan. Coal has tripled in price in the past two years and a shortage has developed since Japan bought most of the best Appalachian coaling coal for its steel mills.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor—
I understand that there was a cliché back in the 1920s that whatever was good for business was good for the nation. I have always doubted the wisdom of that statement. And now since the coal business is booming as never before, the coal-producing counties of Eastern Kentucky are being completely destroyed by the coal operators—stripping, auguring and using any means whereby they can get a ton of coal. It seems to me it is time for the good people of Kentucky to come to the aid of its citizens who are still in Eastern Kentucky and would like to remain here.

Regardless of who you go to and ask for help, they reply that their wife has some folks in the coal business, etc. But the way the land is being destroyed, there will be nothing left here for posterity in a very few years, and we will all be relying on the people in the Western and Blue-grass areas of Kentucky. So you must come to our aid now.

It seems that Governor Nunn and Attorney General Breckinridge have completely turned their backs on the people in this part of Kentucky.

INSURANCE RATE HIKE APPROVED

FRANKFORT, KY. — Allstate Insurance Co. has been granted a 10.2% statewide average rate increase for automobile coverage, the second increase for the company in 18 months. Allstate received a rate increase of 15.9% 19 months ago.

Insurance Commissioner Robert Preston said all other insurance companies operating in Kentucky have been granted increases recently. These include State Farm Mutual, Nationwide, the Kentucky Farm Bureau, and all 250 companies comprising the Insurance Rating Board.

Allstate's new increase will amount to about $527,000 annually in added rates. Affected are liability, medical, collision and comprehensive coverages.

Preston said that under new regulations, the Insurance Department will try to review each company's rate structure at least once a year.

Perkins Pushes For Release Of Students Aid Funds For State

WASHINGTON — Rep. Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) Wednesday asked the Bureau of Budget to release almost $7.5 million in federal student aid funds for Kentucky. He said the money is essential to enable several thousand students to continue their education.

The money was contained in an education bill which became effective when Congress overturned President Nixon's veto of the bill. Perkins said the Kentucky share contained $3.4 million for students loans under the National Defense Education Act, $3.9 million for a college work-study program, and $858,000 for economic opportunity grants.

Though $669,000 above the budget request, Perkins said the money still falls short of students' needs.

KENTUCKY EDITOR NOMINATED FOR NATIONAL POKE WARDEN IN 1970

Washington Star columnist Philip Love recently proposed organization of the National Society for Propagation of Poke-weed, and received tremendous response from readers.

J. D. Bond an East Kentucky living in Maryland, promptly nominated Floyd County Times publisher Norman Allen of Prestonsburg to be National Polk Warden. And for good reason. It was editor Allen who in Depression days of the early 1930's championed poke salad: from the hills as far superior to the grapefruit shipped in by government relief agencies to feed unemployed mountaineers.

Wrote the Maryland-based Kentucky native—

"The Courier-Journal's Joe Creason is not true Appalachia; neither is his predecessor, Allen M. (Socrates) Trout. Their evangelism for pokeweed was inspired by that true and senior disciple, Norman Allen, who is mostly the Floyd County Times of Prestonsburg, Kentucky. His published teachings before and during the Great Depression (the 30's) spread more nourishment that "relief" grapefruit and the like, which even hogs wouldn't eat."

And our Prestonsburg fellow publisher last week responded to the honor—

If perchance, I should be so greatly honored — I shall accept.

In fact, I have already given some thought to my acceptance speech, outlining my plans for equal opportunity to every pokesallet lover, for its spread through scientific soil preparation to new areas of the country, and for its protection in an age when the ecology is under a dark shadow. "I may as well be frank with the public here at the outset of this campaign. If named to this high office, I will appoint Watt Hale, of West Prestonsburg, Ky., as my press secretary, and J. D. Bond would as my campaign manager be appointed to the office of Pokemaster General."

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

The social security office at Ashland is part of a nationwide network of regional, district, branch, neighborhood offices and contact stations reaching from the far tip of the Aleutians to the Caribbean Sea.

They reflect an administrative style, established 35 years ago on August 14 when social security was first enacted, to bring the program's benefits and information directly to the people, according to Ashland district manager Thomas B. Thompson.

Areas served by social security offices range from one of the newest (Anaheim, California), and the oldest (Austin, Texas), to one of the most elongated—that of Anchorage, Alaska, which stretches from the western end of the Alaskan panhandle to the most remote island in the Aleutian chain.

The Ashland office, which was opened on January 15, 1937, serves an area composed of seven counties—Boyd, Carter, Elliott, Greenup, Lawrence, Morgan and Rowan. The office is currently paying $17,940,000 annually in benefits to 21 thousand service area residents.

Social security also serves the people through neighborhood offices and contact stations located "Where the people are," said Thompson. The "neighborhood office" is a recent innovation intended to bring social security information closer to the people in urban areas. It may be only a store front in the inner city, but it does give people easy access to social security services.

Contact station locations that are visited regularly by social security representatives may be close to a full-time social security office or hundreds of miles away by air and sea, as in the Aleutians. Thompson said, The contact station is an additional tool used by the Social Security Administration to bring social security information to everyone who may have a right to benefits under this 35-year-old law.

Contact stations maintained by the Ashland office are located and visited as follows:

LOUISA — Post Office — 1st and 3rd Thursday each month.

MOREHEAD — State Bldg. — each Monday.

OLIVE HILL — City Hall — 2nd and 4th Thursday each month.

SANDY HOOK — Court-house — 2nd Tuesday each month.

WEST LIBERTY — Court-house — each Wednesday.

The yearly cost of keeping a lion at Chicago's Brookfield Zoo is about $2,000. Each adult lion eats 72 pounds of meat a week, and other expenses include maintenance, wages, etc.

CHILDREN'S LOVE

By Mrs. Glenn Lawson

"I love you, mother," said little John.

Forgetting his work, his cap went on.

He was off to the garden swing, Leaving his mother the wood to bring.

"I love you mother," said little Nell.

"Love you better than tongue can tell."

She teased and pouted full half the day.

Her mother rejoiced when she went to play.

"I love you, mother," said little Fan.

"Today I will help you all I can."

How glad I am that school doesn't keep."

So she rocked the baby until it fell asleep.

Stepping softly, she took the broom,

Swept the floor, dusted the room.

Busy and cheerful all day was she,

Busy and helpful as a child could be.

"We love you, mother," again they said.

Three little children going to bed.

But how do you reckon their mother guessed

Which of them really loved her best?

AIR POLLUTION BAD IN VALLEYS OF APPALACHIA

"IN APPALACHIA we are on the verge of some major disasters involving air pollution."

This is the warning being sounded by Dr. Charles L. Hosler, dean of the College of Earth and Mineral Science at The Pennsylvania State University and an industrial consultant on pollution problems.

Writing in the current issue of "Appalachia," the journal of the Appalachian Regional Commission, Dr. Hosler notes that the pollution threat which faces the nation as a whole is particularly ominous where the Appalachian region is concerned because of topography.

DR. HOSLER points out that "the ridge-and-valley area of Appalachia pose particular problems. When the slopes and mountaintops become cool at night, cold dense air flows into the valley, producing a strong inversion or air blanket which acts as a buffer and prevents the pollution from mixing vertically."

"The net result," he continues, "is that, with long cold nights and relatively light winds, each valley becomes a bathtub filled with cold air. If factories, mills and power plants are built in the valley bottoms, the bathtub is filled with cold polluted air which has no place to go and therefore becomes more and more damaging to all forms of life."

PEOPLE WITH MILD HEART CONDITION NEED LIFE-SAVING DRUGS, VA SAYS

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Many a doctor tells them they fall in the mild or moderate category.

The drugs used in the extensive VA study—in which about 25 other VA doctors collaborated—consisted of two types of tablets. One was a combination of hydrochlorothiazide and reserpine; the other consisted of a drug called hydralazine.

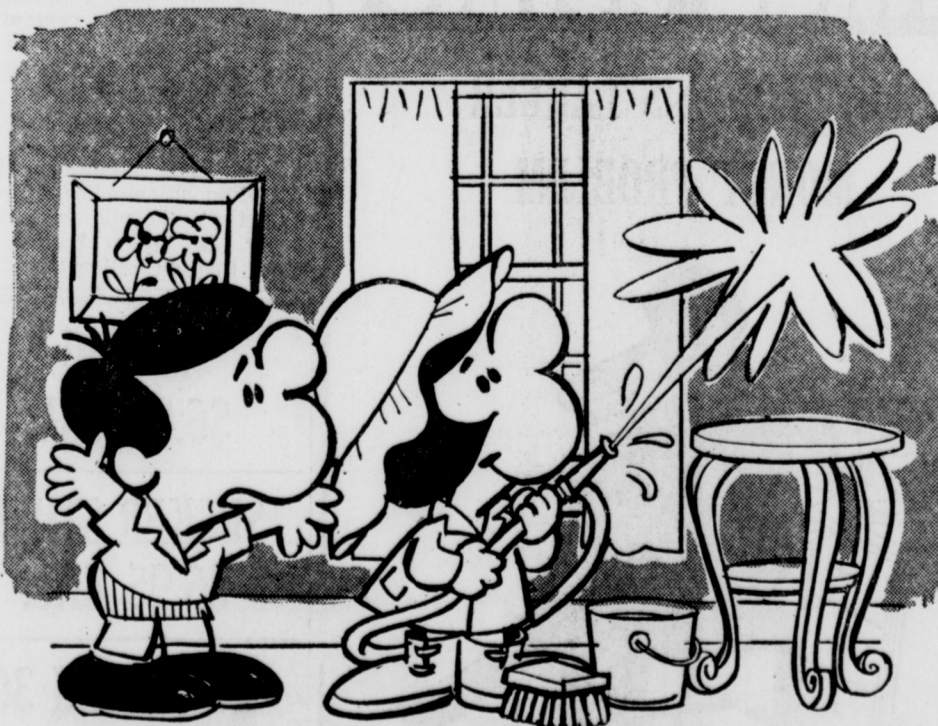

But Freis said a number of other good anti-hypertensive drugs are also available, and he urged doctors to use any one of them for:

—All male patients having so-called "fixed hypertension"—that is, those whose elevated blood pressure does not come down to normal when they rest.

—All patients—men or women—whose "diastolic" or relaxed blood pressure reaches 105 or higher, even though it might drop temporarily from such figures during resting periods.

Freis said the new VA studies have demonstrated beneficial effects of the daily dosages outweigh the undesirable ones.

All too many patients don't take their malady seriously after the Battle of Little Mountain in 1782.

Make Chores Easier with an Electric Water System!

Running water takes the drudgery out of so many jobs because it makes work go faster and so much easier when water is as handy as the nearest tap. It's important to your family's health because a handy shower or tub encourages better health habits.

An electric water system can help you earn more, too. Tests prove that livestock and poultry produce better when water is readily available. An electric water system also lets you irrigate crops for bigger yields.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

By MARGARET WALLACE

Our Sunday morning worship hour is being broadcast this month.

Summer vacations are over. Our attendance for all services has been low but has increased for the past week.

The Women's Missionary Society and Young People's Organizations are being re-organized for this year.

Eva Elliott will serve as Baptist Women's president, Lorene Wilson Secretary, treasurer, Lillian Nickell, program director, Mrs. Lester, Prayer Chairman, Barbara Cross director of Young People ages 17 through 29, and Barbara Motley, assistant young people director. Programs are being planned for age group nursing through intermediate.

We extend prayers and get well wishes to Joe Haney.

As a memorial to Mrs. W. H. Wells, who passed away a few weeks ago and who was an inspiration to me in writing her church news article for so many years, I would like to share with our readers just a few things in memory of Mrs. Wells, my dear neighbor and friend.

On Thursday afternoon before Mrs. Wells departed us in death on Saturday of the same week, she was helped across the street by Mr. Wells and into my house as she did so often. We sat on the couch and held hands and had the best time. Although there was 40 years difference in our ages, we always had a wonderful and joyous time together. We both loved the same Lord and Savior and he had saved us by his mercy and grace and it brought joy to our hearts. We talked about how God had been so good to us through the years and that he loved us in spite of our sins and he would continue to love us throughout eternity. We promised God and each other that no matter what happened, we would forever be grateful and would love and serve him as long as we both lived.

We talked about other things, too. How her cat that she loved so much had been killed. How her head had been aching so bad for some time, and I complained about my sore toe that had been so sore for a month that I could hardly keep up with my 3-year-old son.

It was time for Mr. Wells to come to help her across the street. She laughingly remarked that she loved "Tooter" even though he didn't always do everything she told him to do and I said that I had the same situation with H. A. She went home and that was our last good-bye in this life. DON'T OVERSPEND
FOR ADVERTISING

THE NATIONAL OBSERVER, started three years ago, now goes to over a million paid subscribers, bringing readers every Monday morning all the world news of importance, sprightly features, editorials, and a look into the past.

THE SATURDAY REVIEW began as the Saturday Review of Literature, and now is the SATURDAY REVIEW of literature, science, education, music, communications, travel, business, world affairs, movies, TV.

Yes, the Weeklies are growing because they give the details—a once-a-week wrap-up of all that's important—and details that fast-moving Americans don't get from hurry-scurry bulletins.

And . . . In Ol' Morgan it's

that gives Morgan people a once-a-week wrap-up of all that's important . . . gives it in detail, plus sprightly feature articles, illustrated with on-the-spot pictures, editorial opinions on local, state, and national topics, and all legal notices and pronouncements that citizens have to know to be well informed. Personal and society news also, and news from Rural Morgan County written by 38 country correspondents.

BUSINESSMEN DON'T HAVE TO OVERSPEND ON THEIR ADVERTISING

for they have a captive audience one day a week through their home newspaper. Most firms in cities with fine daily papers advertise only once a week. But they check to see which day gives full impact. Usually, it's Thursday for groceries and super markets, Sunday for department and apparel stores, Monday for farm supplies, etc.

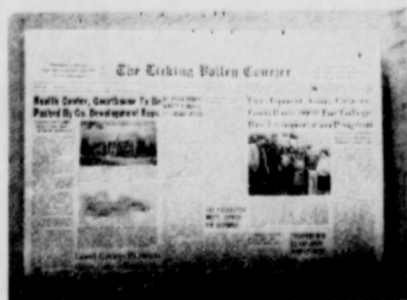

MR. BUSINESSMAN!

Don't worry about overspending on your advertising — Don't worry about covering your trade territory — Don't worry about getting full impact . . .

for The Courier goes into 3,261 homes of paid subscribers — and all the family reads it, and sometimes the neighbors, too. The Courier gives your business once-a-week guaranteed advertising coverage of your trade territory.

AND ONCE-A-WEEK GUARANTEED
COVERAGE IS CHEAPER, SURE
THAN ANY OTHER WAY

You don't have to worry about COVERAGE, or about full IMPACT, or about OVERSPENDING if you depend on

"It covers Morgan like the Morning Dew"
